

Fighting for Liberty

It seems altogether fitting that a National Day of Thanksgiving and a National Day of Remembrance for Veterans fall in the same month. For without the sacrifices of the brave men and women who answered the call to defend and protect our Constitution, there might not be a reason to give thanks. The Lutheran Center for Religious Liberty (LCRL) joins the nation in thanking veterans for their defense of liberty—especially religious liberty.

The fight to preserve liberty is not limited to those who wear a military uniform. It is a fight fought each day:

- In classrooms, when a student speaks up for the power of God as Creator.
- In the workplace, when a worker refuses an assignment that violates their beliefs.
- In a city council meeting, when a citizen speaks against a popular ordinance that infringes on personal liberty.
- On a sports team, when a player stands alone over a matter of personal conscience.
- In hundreds of conversations—across the table, the fence, or the pew.

The Lutheran Center for Religious Liberty advocates for Religious Liberty.
